

Shacknews Becomes a Gaming Tribe Content Partner

Dallas, Texas, USA -- Tuesday, May 20, 2014 – Mass Luminosity announced today that video game website Shacknews is joining Gaming Tribe as a content/media partner. The new Shacknews Gaming Tribe page is located at www.gamingtribe.com/page/Shacknews

"Founded in 1996, Shacknews is one of the oldest community-driven video game sites in existence today, so it makes perfect sense to partner with Gaming Tribe and its growing audience of PC gaming enthusiasts," said John Gaudiosi, editorial director, Shacknews and co-founder of Gamerhub Content Network. "With a new-found focus on exclusive video content, Shacknews will bring Gaming Tribe members access to the biggest names in game development across all platforms and provide an inside look at big shows like GDC, E3, San Diego Comic Con and Gamescom."

"We see Gaming Tribe as the world's first video game social media network, which is why we've linked to the site with a 'G' right next to Facebook and Twitter," said Gaudiosi. "With the upcoming relaunch of Shacknews, we hope to welcome in new gaming fans from Gaming Tribe to our fold, while offering our own readers a new way to connect and interact."

"The Mass Luminosity team welcomes Shacknews to our Gaming Tribe social media network," said Angel Munoz, founder and CEO, Mass Luminosity. "We are excited to fulfill the request for in-network gaming content that we've received from some of our loyal community members. Gaming Tribe members will now have direct access to the latest events and industry news without having to leave the network."
